Welcome to the Maldives

The Maldives is an island nation, covering an area of over 90,000 square kilometres in the Indian Ocean – 99 percent of which is sea, with land being just one percent. With over 1,190 coral islands ringed by a beautiful landscape of reefs, it is the most dispersed country in the world. The complex atoll structures of the Maldives are formed on ridges rising from the ocean.

The over 400,000 population of the Maldives is scattered across 188 islands, with more than one third of it concentrated in capital Malé, making it one of the most densely populated cities in the world.

Its unique geography and breath-taking natural beauty has made the Maldives one of the most sought-after holiday destinations in the world. Of the 1,190 islands, more than 120 have been developed as resorts and are in operation, and at least another 50 are under development.

Despite this rapid socio-economic development aided by a booming tourism industry, the allure of the Maldives is here to stay!

CULTURE AND HERITAGE

From local cuisine to music, the culture of Maldives reflects a rich blend of the many cultural aspects introduced by seafarers who settled in the country in the ancient times. The deep influences embedded in Maldives’ culture can be traced back to ancient civilizations of Arab, African and East Asian continents.

As expected, the Maldives’ culture has borrowed several traits from its neighbours in South Asia, especially in terms of the traditional cuisine. This includes spicy curries using coconut milk and fish as the main staples and either white rice or Roshi (a thin variant of Indian flatbread) as a popular accompaniment. But for those who want to try something familiar, there is a range of world cuisine available now, including pasta, burgers, noodles and other comfort foods – some of which have been infused with local tastes and spices. Such localisation of international cuisine can be seen from the menus of several resorts across the archipelago.

However, unlike in most South Asian customs where women are shunned from public view – such are not tenets of life in the Maldives. In retrospect, women play a major role in society – not surprising since the majority of Maldivian men traditionally spend the whole day out at sea fishing.

The mixing of cultures is evident in Maldivian art forms as well. The music played with the local Boduberu (literally translated as big drum) resembles that of African drumming. The Dhoni (a unique Maldivian sailboat) is an art form itself built with skilled craftsmanship, with significant similarities to the Arabian dows.
The fine artistry of Maldivians, seen in the intricate details on wooden beams in antique mosques such as the Friday Mosque in capital Malé, represents what traditional craftsmen have gained from Southeast Asian architecture. This fusion of cultures also extends to elements whose origins are unknown; like the distinct geometric designs used in mats – known in local Dhivehi language as Thundu Kunaa – woven from local materials. The embroidered neckline of women's traditional dresses – called Libaas – and their ornaments are another design concept that remains unique to the Maldives.

Another important aspect of the Maldives' culture and its identity is the unique language. The language, known as Dhivehi, is believed to be of Indo-Iranian Sanskrit origin. It is also closely related to the Sinhalese language, which is widely spoken in neighbouring Sri Lanka.

However, Dhivehi has gradually evolved over time due to acculturation to Islamic and Arabic traditions. Since the Maldives embraced Islam in 1153, the religion has become increasingly central to the life of Maldivians. The main events and festivals in Maldivian lifestyle such as the Eids, Ramadan and Hajj amongst others revolve around the Muslim Hijri Calendar. The Gregorian calendar is followed for all administrative, business and social purposes, as well as celebrations outside Islamic context. From infancy, children are taught the Arabic alphabet and the Muslim holy book of Quran. Religious education is provided both at home and at school, and Islam is part of the school curriculum.

On the cultural front too, Maldivians have one that boasts cultural assimilation, and have been generally welcoming to outside inspiration. Locals still eat fish and fishermen still spend days out at sea. But tourism now takes a standing prominence.

Despite the long-held tradition of unity and conforming to a single identity, recent waves of socio-political reform in the country have led to new ideas and attitudes. Though the changes of the modern world are now more widely embraced, the Maldives has managed to uphold the country's identity, traditions and beliefs to a large extent – all the while creating a fusion of cultural identities.

WEATHER AND CLIMATE

Maldives has a tropical climate, which is warm and sunny throughout the year with little variations in temperature. The temperature varies between 26-32 Degrees Celsius with the hottest being April. Tourist peak season in the Maldives is from December to April when there is little rainfall and low humidity.

The year is divided into two seasons based on the monsoons. The North East Monsoon (Iruvai) lasts from December to April and is marked by very little rainfall, lower humidity, calm seas and constant sunshine. High humidity and heavy rainfall occur during the wet South West Monsoon (Hulhangu), which lasts from May to October. Seas are rougher during this time with potential for strong winds.

GETTING IN AND AROUND

Visitors to the Maldives arrive at the main Velana International Airport, located on the island of Hulhule, two kilometres across the water from capital Malé. Gan International Airport in the southernmost Addu City also receives a limited number of visitors.

International carriers flying to the Maldives are a mixture of scheduled and charter airlines, with major airlines such as Emirates, Qatar Airways, Etihad Airways, Turkish Airlines, British Airways, Alitalia, Air France, Singapore Airlines, Cathay Pacific and SriLankan Airlines operating numerous weekly flights to and from Malé. Flagship carrier Maldivian also connects the Maldives to various cities in China, India and Bangladesh.

Representatives of resorts and guesthouses welcome their guests upon arrival in the Maldives. Guests are then whisked away to their destination either by sea or air. Independent travellers are advised to check relevant ferry schedules or arrange their own transfers.

In addition to Maldivian, privately run FlyMe and Manta Air operate domestic flights on several routes within the country. Seaplane operators, including Maldivian, Manta Air and Trans Maldivian Airways (TMA) – world’s largest seaplane operator – also serve several resorts located in outer atolls.

EXPLORING MALÉ

A tropical paradise, Maldives is home to some of the most stunning beaches in the world. Azure waters, stretches of sparkling white sand, luxury resorts, thrilling water sports, and diving make it a dream holiday destination for people from all walks of life.

Maldives has something for everyone; be it local cuisine, life in the bustling capital city or culture.

VISIT FISH MARKET

Located on the northern end of Malé, the Fish Market is part of the bustling marketplace. Multi-coloured fishing boats line the harbour facing the fish market, where local fishermen unload their day’s catch. Locals, expatriates and visitors alike come here to buy fresh yellow fin tuna, skipjack tuna and varieties of seafood caught by sustainable fishing methods.

BUY FRESH PRODUCE

Just a block west from the Fish Market is the Local Market, where islanders sell fresh produce. One can buy seasonal fruits such as local mangoes as well as a mix of coconut, papaya, watermelon and banana. A variety of salad leaves and local vegetables as well as imported produce can also be found here.

VISIT HISTORICAL SITES

The 17th-century Hukuru Miskiy (Friday Mosque) and its minaret stand as a testament to the skills of early Maldivians. Across the road is the Medhu Ziyaaraiy, tomb of Abul Barakaath Yusuf al Barbary, a Sunni Muslim traveller responsible for introducing Islam to the archipelago. Muliaage, an old presidential palace which still functions as an official residence of the president, is just around the corner too.

TAKE A STROLL IN A PARK

The congested capital city has recently welcomed a host of new parks, mostly on the western and eastern end. The most notable of them, within easy walking distance to tourist arrival jetty, is the historic Sultan Park – now renovated and renamed as Rasrani Bageecha. The park has been modelled according to traditional Maldivian architecture, and functions as an entertainment and heritage site.

TRY OUT LOCAL SNACKS

On the western side of Malé’s marine drive are a number of roadside ‘on-wheel’ stalls operated by local vendors. Mostly open during the evening and through the night, these stalls are the place to be to enjoy some local sweets, savoury treats as well as fresh king coconut.

A retro-inspired retreat, Finolhu brings a burst of fun, world-class entertainment and toes-in-the-sand relaxation to fun-loving beach-erati. Translucent waters, 1.8km long white sand bank and blue skies aside, what sets it apart is its effortlessly stylish surrounds and beach clubby-ness.

Finolhu’s 125 villas come overwater or by the beach, with or without pool in one- or two-bedroom options. Have leisurely breakfasts at Baa Baa Beach Diner, and choose from North African flavours at the Baahaa Grill and Cantonese fine dining at the overwater Kanusan. Our favourite place is the Fish & Crab Shack. 1OAK Beach Club is the social hub, with a pool, beach cinema, gamers’ arcade and futuristic rooftop bar. Activities range from yoga and kickboxing UFC sessions to snorkelling and high-octane X Jet Blades.

Dramatically located in a secluded spot along Finolhu’s 1.5km sandpit, far from the buzz of the beach club, the Beach Bubble — developed and created by The Small Maldives Island Co (TSMIC) — is exclusively for romantic, one-night-only ‘Dream Eclipse’ experiences under the stars.

Exotic, deserted and untouched is one way of describing the indescribable. Fun Island is located in South Malé Atoll, just a 45-minute speedboat ride from Velana International Airport. The island is approximately 700m long and 168m wide.

Fun Island offers a wonderful blend of ‘Fun and Sun’. The massive lagoon of the island provides ideal conditions for a variety of water sports and the powder white beaches offer you the chance to enjoy the sun and the sand in picturesque settings.
Nestled within Raa Atoll, Furaveri Island Resort & Spa is unique by nature and design. It has captured many hearts since its opening two years ago – the story of Furaveri is worth exploring. The island is rich in flora and fauna, and villas are integrated into its natural surroundings. Boasting an impressive 107 villas across the island, guests have six different types to choose from. While each category has a unique aspect, all are spacious, elegantly themed and offers a cozy atmosphere.

Two captivating reefs surround the island, where one can marvel at the multi-coloured corals and observe the diverse marine life around. Turtles and baby sharks can be spotted dwelling in the island’s clear blue waters, and if you are lucky, you may even spot a stingray or two.

With a focus on providing impeccable service and catering to every need, Furaveri is a dream destination for all holidaymakers, couples and families alike.
